

SUELLEN CUSACK AND NATHAN LAY TO PERFORM SPECIAL TRIBUTE FOR REMEMBRANCE IN ADELAIDE

Adelaide, South Australia - Regal Theatre is set to showcase a stirring performance to commemorate Remembrance, featuring the exceptional musical prowess of Suellen Cusack, Australia's #1 crossover artist, and distinguished baritone from Opera Australia, Nathan Lay.

At the tender age of 21, Suellen Cusack's great uncle was the only soldier to return from his squadron after serving Australia in World War 2. His remarkable service led to his being awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his extraordinary bravery and dedication. Suellen Cusack has shown her respect through her Requiem For A Soldier performance with Gregory Moore.

Nathan Lay shares his connection to Remembrance, "I'm very excited to have the opportunity to perform the songs from my 'Remembrance' album in concert. Believe it or not, there was no concert performance or tour after the album launched in 2017, which means that this is one of the first live performances I've done of my tracks on the album! Additionally, I have two great-grandfathers who fought in World War I, which makes performing these songs even more meaningful."

Immersive and captivating, this exceptional performance is scheduled for 2pm on Sunday, 3rd November, at The Regal Theatre in Kensington Park. It promises to deliver a profoundly moving experience, paying tribute to the courageous individuals who served during significant historical turning points.

During the performance of 'Remembrance', a unique visual tribute will be displayed on the theatre's screen, complementing the music. This captivating presentation aims to pay homage to the brave individuals who have served, creating a compelling backdrop that intimately connects the audience with the personal narratives behind the songs. Attendees who have purchased tickets are encouraged to participate in this moving experience at no additional cost by submitting photographs of their heroes to Kathryn McGowan via email at kathryn@kmpr.com.au.

For more information, interviews, or media inquiries, please contact:
Elena Di Fiore | PR Agent, Fine-Tuned PR by Maestro Media
+61 420 221 773 | elena@maestromedia.com.au